

Paige Trojanowski, Ph.D. Bio

Paige Trojanowski, Ph.D., is a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Barbara Davis Center for Diabetes at the University of Colorado. She completed her Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology at George Mason University and her clinical residency at the University of Florida. Prior to graduate school, she completed a B.S. in Neuroscience at The Ohio State University. Her program of research is focused on preventing psychological health problems, particularly disordered eating, in youth with type 1 diabetes and improving self-management behaviors. She also works clinically with children and adolescents with type 1 diabetes and their families.